Whether Common or Not By WILL M. MAUPIN.

Slightly Mixed For some time rumors had been current to the effect that a move was shortly to be made in the famous rate case. Attorneys were busily conferring, and prominent citizens and business men seemed pre-occupied while at their places of business.

All this, of course, could not fail of attracting the attention of Judge Fixem, and anticipating a sudden call upon him he so arranged matters as to be in chambers practically all of his time.

This being true Judge Fixem was all ready, and not at all surprised, when he saw filing into his office a fine array of legal talent and a delegation of prominent men.

"The court will be in order!" exclaimed the bailiff.

Assuming his most judicial air, Judge Fixem asked what brought the delegation.

"Your honor," said an attorney, slowly rising and spreading out a large array of legal documents, "we appear this morning in the matter of the recent freight and passenger rates fixed by the legislature and the railway commission. It is not necessary for us to go into the history of these now famous laws, therefore I will hasten to the point. We have here prepared a writ of injunction which we wish to have issue from this honorable court, enjoining the—"

"I see!" exclaimed Judge Fixem, reaching for his pen. "I see. You seek to enjoin the enforcement of these confiscatory laws. I will at once sign the temporary restraining order and set the date for hearing at any time most convenient to you. Such laws should not be enforced until they have been reviewed as to their constitutionality—the opinion to be handed down by some one whose knowledge of—"

"I beg your pardon, your honor," said the attorney. "We are not appearing for the railroads to see an injunction against the enforcement of these laws, which we think wise and beneficial. We appear to secure an order restraining the railroads from enjoining our public officials from performing their duty."

"What!" shrieked Judge Fixem, growing livid with rage. "Would you seek to use this honorable court in that manner? Would your prostitute the writ of injunction to such base and ignoble ends? I am surprised! I am dumfounded! I refuse to sign any such ridiculous restraining order, and I warn you and your associates not to again seek to make of this court a tool in the hands of the anarchistic element. The bailiff will adjourn court."

Passed The pilgrim knocked at the gate and waited for St. Peter to open. "Well, who are you?" asked Peter. "One who would fain enter."

"Those who enter here must show cause," said Peter. "What have you to say for yourself?"

"Very little," said the pilgrim. "While on earth I tried to treat my family as cordially as I treated my customers, and I never laughed at a mother-in-law joke, and—"

"That's enough!" exclaimed Peter. "You walk right over there and pick out your own harp and crown."

The Sufferer "What's the matter with Pufferly? A month ago he was the picture of health. Today he looks as decrepit as a picture of Father Time."

"He got a fine meerchaum pipe for Christmas, and he is trying to color it."

Coincident "They tell me that Stocksonbonds is dead broke."

"Yes; he invested all his money in airship stock, and neither the stock nor the airship would go up."

Ignorance is an enemy that we may overcome.

Johnnie Wise "Now, Johnnie," said the teacher, "how do you pronounce o-l-e-o-m-a-r-g-a-r-i-n-e?"

"Butter!" shouted Johnnie Wise, whose father kept the corner grocery.

Hope never dies in a heart full of love.
